GROUP CONDUCTING DATA COLLECTION: HARRIS INTERACTIVE

You are one of about 1200 young people who we have asked to take a survey about “Internet Bullying.” This is part of a bigger research study that will help us learn how young people are using the Internet to connect with people and learn new information. This study is being funded by the National Institutes of Health. It is conducted by Dr. Ybarra at Internet Solutions for Kids, along with partner organizations. We want to ask about your experiences online, good and bad, as well as activities you might take part in offline. This page explains this research study. Please read it carefully.

The survey will take you about 10 minutes to do. It is important that you fill out the survey by yourself. No one should be able to see your answers. No one should tell you what your answers should be. You do not have to answer any question you don’t want to.

Your answers are important. They help us learn the good and bad things that youth are experiencing online.

Taking this survey won’t help or hurt you. Some questions might make you upset or feel uncomfortable.

You don’t have to answer any question you don’t want to for any reason. Your answers are important to us.
